CHARACTER • INTEGRITY • CONFIDENCE

At the Well Young Women's Leadership Academy was developed out of a strong commitment from At the Well Conferences, Inc. to help young women overcome obstacles they face in becoming successful leaders. The two-week program will commence August 12-24, 2012, at Princeton University. The leadership academy is geared towards minority girls in underserved communities entering the tenth, eleventh and twelfth grades. Goals of the leadership academy include the following:

- Higher confidence on SAT and/or other standardized tests
- Higher achievement and motivation in school
- Increase in school extracurricular activities
- Increase in community service and leadership activity

Enroll now and experience the benefits this intense academic program will instill to help guide you on the path to excellence as you pursue your personal, student, and career goals.

Mission statement

At The Well Young Women's Leadership Academy seeks to empower young women locally to become effective leaders globally. By promoting excellence in education, young talent will transform their communities. We encourage girls to live beyond their limitations, achieve beyond their dreams, and impact communities beyond their reach.

About At the Well Young Women's Leadership Academy

The exceptional students chosen will experience an academic program established to help develop leadership skills and attain excellent standardized test scores. Princeton University Admissions Office will conduct a guided tour of the campus. The lessons taught in our academy will better prepare teens for college acceptance and successful careers.

Leadership

Key areas of focus include problem solving and critical thinking skills, consensus and team building concepts, essay writing, effective communication skills, group dynamics and personal growth.

SAT Preparation

Our test preparation course includes skill review, test-taking strategies and tips, practice exercises and simulated tests. Participants will be given an assessment exam to determine individual strengths and weaknesses. Assessment will be based on practice SAT exams. Program will include 30 hours of instruction.

Curriculum features

- SAT math lessons
